This is the second time since 2004 that CMS has earned the distinction of having scored in the top three of international ATSI participants.

"The Award of Excellence is a 'mystery shopper' program that provides independent testing for quality assurance in customer service levels," said ATSI President, Allan Fromm. "We congratulate Corporate Message Services, Inc. for their TOP TEN achievement."

The industry is comprised of more than 2,700 Critical Care Answering Services and Call Centers throughout the US that are represented by ATSI. In addition, ATSI has reciprocal agreements with Associations in Canada and the UK. The award is based on the results of six months of intensive testing by a panel of independent judges who score entrants from the US, Canada and the United Kingdom on qualities such as courtesy, response time, accuracy and overall service to clients. CMS scored better than 97 percent in all categories earning the company this distinguished recognition once again. As a six-time winner, CMS has now also earned the Association's Pearl Award for achieving this elite status.

"While CMS earned this award from our peers, we believe our customers are the real winners," said CMS President and CEO Richard Bensman. "This kind of recognition tells us that our quality control systems are working to provide our clients with the highest level of service. Ultimately their opinions truly determine our success and we thank them for their loyalty."

The Association of TeleServices International was founded in 1942 as a national trade association representing live answering services. ATSI now encompasses companies across the United States, Canada, and the UK offering specialized and enhanced operator-based services including: call centers, contact centers, inbound telemarketing (order entry), paging, voice messaging, emergency dispatch, fax, and internet services among others.
